LOCAL MAN SUICIDES

The life of Frank Amato, for a great many years resident of Blairmore, came to a tragic ending yesterday afternoon, when he made use of a single-barrel shotgun to blow his brains out.

His family were in an adjoining room, when the rash act was perpetrated. Police and doctors were immediately summoned and found the prostrate body lying in a pool of blood, while the top of his head was scattered to all parts of the room.

Worry over lack of employment is given as the cause.

Frank was about fifty-nine years of age, and leaves a wife and six children; two sons residing in Vancouver, the balance at home.

After viewing the body, the coroner decided an inquest was not necessary.

The funeral will probably take place on Sunday.

THREE C.P.R. EMPLOYEES ARE RETIRED FROM SERVICE

When they finished their "run" or their "trip" on December 31, the three long-time employees of the Canadian Pacific Railway on the Lethbridge division said goodbye to their labors with that company.

The three are J. W. Kipp, despatcher; J. E. Mahon, conductor, and Ben S. Burrell, locomotive engineer. They have reached the retirement age and are pensioned as from January 1, 1933.

In all the three retiring employees have a total of some 109 years of railway service.

Thirty-seven years at the throttle of locomotives in Southern Alberta were ended Saturday with the retirement of pension of Ben S. Burrell, a resident of Lethbridge for many years, and of late stationed at Fernie.

Benjamin Smith Burrell was born on April 6, 1865, at Fair Lawn Lodge, County of York, England, moving to Canada and Lethbridge while still a young man. He joined the Alberta Railway and Irrigation Co. as engineer on January 1, 1895.

After a service of 17 years with the old company, Mr. Burrell joined the Canadian Pacific Railway when it absorbed the smaller company on April 1, 1912. He has since continued as an engineer but has always been employed on the Lethbridge division.

The family resided in Lethbridge until the past ten years when Mr. Burrell was transferred to Fernie, and he has made his home at that town since. For some time he has been engaged in operating the pusher engine, working out of Fernie.

"COMPROMISE" FROCKS

Smart Hollywood women are wearing "compromise" afternoon-evening frocks at every function these days. Nancy Carroll introduces these two-in-one dresses in her current Paramount picture, "Hot Saturday," opening tonight at the Orpheum. Over a white crepe dinner frock, Miss Carroll ties a dark red bolero and long overskirt that permits the white to show in front.

NO DOMINION FIRST AID CONTESTS

The St. John's Ambulance Association has announced that there will be no Dominion Wallace Nesbitt Junior or Gaunt Intermediate first aid contests this year. Boy Scout teams have won the great majority of these competitions for a number of years. For 1932 both cups were carried off by the 2nd Edmonton (St. Faith's), a unique record.

Saturday last was one of the busiest days for the year 1932 in Bellevue and Hillcrest, being forthrightly payday for a large number of miners, and monthly pay-day for the officials. Stores at both towns experienced an unusually brisk business.

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS AT COLE'S THEATRE

A sparkling new Will Rogers starring Fox Film production, "Business and Pleasure." Both Tackling and opening today a Cole's theatre for a three-day run. This picture is said to be the best yet by the versatile comedian. Its action carries Rogers on a Mediterranean cruise and into Northern Africa in pursuit of pleasure and business. Letta Goudal, Joel McCrea, Dorothy Petrasch, Boris Karloff, Peggy Ross, Cyril Ring and Red Prouty are prominent in the cast. David Butler, who made "A Connecticut Yankee," directed "Business and Pleasure."

An unsophisticated country girl and her older girl-digging sister make life miserable for a rich old bachelor after he marries the younger of the pair in "Bachelor's Affairs," the Fox comedy for Wednesday and Thursday, at Cole's theatre, with Adolph Menjou in the leading role. The sister roles are enacted by Mina Gombell and Joan Marsh. Others in the cast include Allan Dymally, Herbert Mundin and Arthur Pearson.

Somerville and Martin Ross; "Roden's Corner," by H. Sten Merrill; "The Banquet of Tarzan," by Burroughs; "Tarzan and the Golden Lion," by Burroughs; "The Brighton Boys with the Battle Fleet," by Lisa.

The library hours are Tuesdays and Thursdays from 7 to 9 p.m., and Saturdays from 7 to 10 p.m. The fee is $1.00 per year for residents and $2.00 per year for non-residents.

PROVINCE HAS FEW IMMEDIATE OBLIGATIONS

Obligations of the provincial government in the way of first-of-the-year payments in New York will be comparatively light, it is stated by Hon. R. G. Reid, provincial treasurer. There are no debentures maturing and payments so far as Alberta is concerned will be confined to interest charges. An interest bill of $265,926 will be due January 1, and on January 15th and 16th a further total of $236,312, also for interest, is to be paid.

Debenture issues maturing in 1933 will total $5,000,000. Of this amount $2,000,000 will be due June 1, and the balance November 1. Against these principal sums the provincial treasury has in sight a payment of $5,000,000 to come in from the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National railways on the purchase account of the northern railway lines. This is booked for June. Alberta is on "easy street" for the two following years, in respect to refunding obligations. In 1934 there will be $2,000,000 maturing, and in 1935 the total will be $3,943,000.

DICKIE MOORE HEADS CAST

Dickie Moore, of the mischievous brown eyes, heads a cast that includes Alexander Carr, Richard Bennett, Zeryl Borer, Hobart Bosworth, Betty Jane Graham, Alec Francis, Mischka Auer and others in "No Greater Love," the Columbia picture opening Monday next at the Orpheum theatre. It is described as a drama as big and thrilling as the heart of humanity and tells the story of the great love between a little crippled girl and a lonely old man.

Professor Gaughan spent the Yuletide with friends in Bellevue.

CHAPTER IV.

Rifles in the Frow

During the meal, as Joyce sat at the head of the table pouring coffee and watching a pair of biscuits in the stove, Alan kept studying her, wondering how any girl could stand the isolation and poverty and lonely battle she was enduring. Two whole years here, two years out of her young womanhood, the choice time of her life, sacrificed at this isolated trading post, giving up everything that a girl holds dear! She was too fine to be leading a life like this. She ought to get out of it. There was a limit to her bravery and spirited strength.

As the men were pushing back their chairs and reaching for pipes, he felt some one probing him with a boot under the table. Looking up, he saw Larry elevate an eyebrow at him.

"Wants to talk to me alone," Alan smiled, and he gave Larry a slight nod. To the other men he said rather sharply: "You men, put away your pipes and police up these dishes. Don't leave a stack like this for Joyce, Bill, you see to that."

Casually going outside a few moments later, he glanced around and saw Larry waiting for him a dozen yards away, over near the storage shed. Sauntering across, he asked quietly:

"What's up now, Larry?" Larry flipped his cigarette aside. "Come in here with me, Alan. I want to show you something."

Producing a pocket flash, he played a yellow shaft upon a pack of furs on a low shelf.

"Alan, you see that wolf skin they're wrapped in? That's what caught my eye. It's a Yukon animal, probably from the Kayukuk headwaters in the Endicott mountains. It made me curious, so I pried into the pack and saw these dark otter. They came from the Yukon, too. I thought to myself, there's no wolf or otter like them in Dave MacMillan's territory." But say, Alan, look—(hold the flash a minute)—look here. Larry pulled out several of the rich, dark-gleaming otter pelts and rolled back the fur at the broad end. "Take a good look at them blue stamp marks."

Alan bent close and he suddenly gasped.

"Good Lord! They're L. & H. furs! What're they doing here, Larry—in Dave MacMillan's possession?"

"Stolen! What else? What's more to us, Alan, I checked on them serial numbers, and this bunch is one of the packs stolen from the Midnight Sun!" He added slowly: "Maybe we don't know yet who them six strangers are, but now we sure'n h—l know who's directing 'em!"

In low tones, there in the darkness, they talked the situation over. Larry finally asked: "You're going to arrest him, Alan? An accomplice that way, even if he didn't have a hand in the actual killing, they'll give him the limit. It'll be h—l on Joyce."

Alan stirred. His voice was torn with pain. "I don't know what I'll do. But I'll have to do something about it."

After a little silence he directed: "Larry, you go down and relieve Ped. Don't tell these other men anything about this yet."

When Larry had gone, Alan left the musty-smelling shed, and walked up along the side of the trading hall to Joyce's window. As he came up, purposely cracking a stick, he had a glimpse of her whole room. Its furniture was a dresser, a chair originally straight but with a pair of rockers fitted to it, a sheet-iron stove with woodbox against the wall, and a bed which he knew had been a condemned barracks cot. But Joyce had somehow lifted the bleak room almost to cheeriness. There were birch-crests of great-spurred violets and Arctic primulas and adonis-tongues on the dresser, some sprigs of bright-eyes berries above it, a wolf-rug across the foot of the bed, and on the dresser a picture of himself, of her former employer down in Ottawa, of her dad and mother.

She had heard him and turned toward the window and recognized him in the weak light. He said: "Joyce, I've got to talk with you. Maybe you'd better come out here where we'll be alone."

She stepped to the window. As Alan looked down, trying to see lightly, "It's unlucky Joyce, to come through a window that way," he felt the hard bulge of that little bulldog automatic pressed against him. At least his gift was still protection to her.

Without a Word of Reply or Self-Protection He Took All She Had to Tell Him.

He suggested: "Let's go a little farther away, Joyce. I don't want that long-eared Whipple overhearing this."

Rather aimlessly, he led her a stone-toss west of the storage shed to a little clear place in the spruces. Trying to prepare her in some measure, he told her of Larry going into the shed, happening to notice a strange pack of furs, examining them, seeing the L. & H. marks and the serial numbers. He hesitated a moment then, with Joyce frowning perplexedly at those strange furs being in the shed; but there was no mercy possible now, and he took the final step.

"Joyce, I hate myself for telling you this. But you've got to know. Those furs in your father's shed are one of the packs stolen from the 'Midnight Sun.'"

"Stolen? From the 'Midnight Sun'?" But Alan—What's—What's it doing here?"

"This afternoon while you were asleep, Joyce, your father, or else one of these bandits, put the furs in there. That pack is—it must be his share in the arrangement. Joyce, your father is somehow connected with these bandits."

Realization came slowly to Joyce. Then sharply, like an instinctive defense, came passionate disbelief and anger; and she drew a little away from him.

"I'm sorry, sorry," he said in heartfelt sympathy. "Your father used to be my friend. And he's your father; that's what hurts the worst."

Joyce drew still farther back from him, with her eyes flashing, with a defiant look of her head. He believed her father guilty! He had gone prying around for evidence! He was blind! Heartless! A man-hunting wolf! Inhuman! Worse.

Alan was thoroughly surprised. He had seen Joyce handle insolent Indians and "brooks," shooting their dialects at them like fufled Yellowknife arrows; but with him, with Bill, with her father, she had always been as quiet as a summer wind. The way she was assailing him now, defending

People Avoiding Sleep.

Without a word of reply or self-protection, he took all she had to tell him. He felt that her anger was not so much against him personally as against the inexorable duty he represented.

"Joyce, please don't," he begged. "Please listen. Maybe I am inhuman and a wolf, and I've got sawdust where my brains ought to be. But also I'm . . . Don't you understand how I'm between the devil and the deep sea?"

She looked up, with tears still glistening on her cheeks. "Alan, I don't believe—oh, I can't believe—that that pack. Alan say it isn't so!"

Her bewildered misery tugged at Alan. He wanted to comfort her with some lie. But he dared not build up any hope, for he knew it would only prove a tragic disappointment to her in the end.

"Joyce, we've got to believe. The pack is there. No use going to see if it is. It's Larry and I made no mistake. We mustn't blind ourselves to the truth."

She suggested eagerly: "Don't you think these furs might have got there some way besides—besides—?" Alan! Don't you see—that pack was planted there! Those men know you'd find it, and stop, and investigate, and arrest my dad! That would give them time and chance to escape—"

As gently as he could, Alan interrupted her. "No, Joyce. Your dad wasn't framed, Larry and I talked that possibility over. If those men had reasoned as you suggest, they'd have put the furs in a conspicuous place where we'd have been sure to find them. The pack wasn't planted. Let's not delude ourselves."

"Joyce, let's try to look at the evidence as others will see it. Your father is absent, and has been for four days, just at this particular time. There is the question of these bandits being strangers and yet getting about this country so well. There's the fact that he was bitter against the big company and probably was tempted to retaliate against them in the only way in his power. And Joyce, there's the bale of furs; that evidence alone is enough to prove a connection."

Joyce listened to him piling up the evidence, but the entire statement total of it did not sway her. Against all she set all she knew of her father's nature.

In her whole life she had never seen him enter a penny of false debt against the most ignorant Indian, or distrust a chair's breadth from his word of honor. She often has thought that the only person in the world her dad had ever wronged was himself. Though he had been drinking heavily and taking up with none-too-unwilling Indian women, it seemed contrary to his whole nature to plot with bandits, to gang with murderers.

As Alan finished his reluctant indictment, her resolve hardened. "She was going to fight for her father and defend him with every weapon in her power."

One way shot into her mind. Her proud head dropped a little, and she asked hesitantly: "Alan, do you have to arrest him? Only you and Mr. Young, and I know about these furs being here. If you could—if we could some way cover it up—"

Freaks in Patent Office

Many Curious Inventions in Patent Office At Ottawa

Automatic hat lifters, sinkable ships, motor-operated baby carriages, a poison bottle that rings a warning gong when lifted from the medicine cabinet—the Canadian patent office has them all.

The search for perpetual motion has led to some weird and freakish inventions, but that subject has no monopoly on mechanical curiosities. Hidden among the thousands of patents in the Ottawa office are eccentric contraptions destined never to see the bright lights of industry.

A Better List

We have a better list of the ten most beautiful words than Mr. Funk's, says the Toronto Saturday Night. They are boom, bog, profit, prosperity, security, wages, salary, dividend, coupon and bonus. The chief reflection induced by Mr. Funk's list of the ten most beautiful words in English is that Mr. Funk must be fond of going to sleep.

Luck This Trail

The head of the Bank of England says he approaches the problems of depression "not only ignorant, but in humility." Some of our own statesmen would be in the same boat if they had the humility says the Louisville Herald-Post.

People Avoiding Sleep.

Habit Seems To Be Growing To Alarming Extent

A prominent eastern neurologist ascribes to lack of adequate sleep the blame for many of the nervous diseases now prevalent on this continent.

He may very well be right. Marchal Foch, in his memoirs, tells of going to bed at 11 o'clock each night during war even while great movements were afoot. To this habit, it was indebted for sound nerves and a cool, steady mind.

Today people are dissipating their sleep to an extent that is actually alarming. There is no doubt that this misuse of the sleeping hours is responsible for a good deal of the modern nervous tension.

People do not get up on 'night in the East. If they have a dinner to attend, they go to it and then come home at 11 or 12 and go to bed like sensible folk.

Out here on the Coast we carry on until one or two in the morning, not in the case of unusual events, but just in the ordinary way. For a special event we are just as likely as not to fail to go to bed at all.

This habit of avoiding sleep is a dangerous one. It is a foolish one. And it is a prodigious one, for sleep is one of the soundest and finest pleasures given to man.—Vancouver Sun.

Recipe For Contentment

Learn To Sew Advice Of New Hampshire Man

Learn to sew if you want to be contented. This is the advice of Myron B. Hoyt, 88, of Hopkinton, New Hampshire, who can handle a needle with the best of them. Two years ago Hoyt couldn't have told the difference between a French stitch and a hemstitch, but since then he has become an expert at embroidery.

"It would be better for everyone," he said today, "if young girls learned more about sewing and less about dancing and staying out late at night. Sewing calls for skill and it teaches patience. While the modern woman may not be aware of it, husbands would be more appreciative of their homes if their wives knew how to sew."

Bishop Has Revolted

Takes Stand Against Wearing Ties

The Rev. Ronald Hall, newly appointed Bishop of Hong Kong, refuses to be bound by tradition.

At a farewell gathering in his parish, at St. Luke's, Newcastle, England, he took a stand against wearing gaudy ties, an apron, and "even times I may discard the clerical collar," he said.

"What I do is my natural way," Mr. Hall declared. "A bishop in gaudy looks like Pickwick at a funeral."

As to the apron, it would be far better if bishops wore a towel with which to wash the feet of others. I refuse to bow down before convention.

"A Christian should not care two hoots about what anybody thinks."

Remember Lost Child

Winnipeg Parents Still Trim Tree For Missing Daughter

There was one Christmas tree in Winnipeg from which the presents were not handed down, and which did not draw the usual cries of delight from the children with its bright lights and tinsel.

For five years little Julia Johnson, Winnipeg's "lost child," has been absent from the humble cottage on Austin Street, but each year the same loving hands have erected the Christmas tree and strung with decorations, dear to the hearts of children.

Blue Canary Promised

No one has seen a purple cow or a blue canary, and no one hopes to see a purple cow, but a blue canary has been promised to a thrilled clientele of Canary fanciers no later than 1942. The promise was made at the recent meeting of the Maryland Canary Breeders' Association.

Channel Flying Popular

More and more London folk use their private aeroplanes nowadays to fly over for dinner in Paris.

Anybody who may hear the apology—"I am so sorry! We can't dine with you tomorrow night, for we are flying across to keep a supper appointment in Paris, but we shall be back for luncheon the following day."

Undoubtedly this is one of the reasons why some of our London supper places are becoming more and more Continental in character, for quite a number of rich French people repay us the compliment by travelling through the Channel in their private aeroplanes.

Talking of flying it is really quite pretty manners on the part of Imperial Airways, in the small hand-book they have just issued containing hints to passengers, that are responsible for this sentence: "You, too, will be weighed; the dist of the weighing machine is seen only by the officials." A kindness, in some cases; and Crocydon wants to know your weight lest its machines be overloaded.

The pilot has been promoted. "Do not be perturbed," says one of the hints, "at hearing the engine slow down from time to time. It means that the captain wishes to fly at a lower altitude, or that he is preparing to land at the journey's end."

The explanation is that it is advisable to impress on air passengers the fact that the pilot is in command, just as the captain of a ship at sea is the final authority.—Overseas Daily Mail, London, England.

Little Helps For This Week

"We then that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to please ourselves."—Romans 15:1.

If there be some weaker one, Give me strength to help him on; If a blinder soul there be, Let me guide him nearer Thee.

Ask Him to increase your powers of sympathy; to give you more depth of sympathy in little things as well as great. Opportunities of doing a kindness are often lost from mere want of thought. Half a dozen lines of kindness may bring sunshine into the whole day of a sick person. Think of the pleasure you might give to some one who is shut-in, and who has fewer pleasures than you have, by sharing with that one some little comfort or enjoyment you have learned to look on as a necessary of life. Ask "What would I like myself if I were hard-worked, or sick, or lonely? Cultivate the habit of sympathy."—G. H. Wilkinson.

Have Raised Quality

Manitoba Turkey Producers Had Good Market This Year

Producers of some of Canada's finest Christmas dinners sold some of the dinners, crated others and started home to tell the farm about their successes. The Manitoba Turkey Breeders' Association closed their third annual all-turkey show at Winnipeg with a banquet at which speakers told them they had raised the quality of Manitoba gobblers and were keen to tell the farm about their successes. They hope to hold the large sale of the world's market they cut for themselves this season.

Considered It Done

A Dutchman had a clerk who struck him for a rise of wages. Said the Dutchman: "Hans, I think I buy you pretty dearly already."

"Oh, well," said the clerk, "of course I get a good salary; but you know I do everything and run everything; in fact, you couldn't get along without me."

"Hans," said the Dutchman, "what I do for you is?"

"Oh, well, of course, if I did you would have to get along without me."

The Dutchman smoked in silence a while, then, "Well, Hans, I think we consider you paid."

Their Chief Worry

A German woman is offering farmers scientific advice about growing beans under the favorable influence of the moon. Now if some other scientist will just tell farmers how to add beans after they grow them the service will be complete.

To Catch Auto Bandits

An anti-bandit device, which has just been invented by an autoist of Wellingtonborough, England, will, when the driver presses a button, electricity all the metal parts of a car. Bandits touching the radiator or the starter, would get a severe shock.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

WITH FLOWERS

When someone gives you flowers, He gives a host of things: Bright vistas of gay gardens, The flash of blue-bird's wings! The rosy sky of morning, The golden sky of noon, The tranquil glow of twilight, The magic of the moon!

When someone brings you flowers, He lends a fleeting sense Of long-forgotten garlands And childhood's inner never, For, ever, fresh as dawning And sweet as dusk and dew, The flowers bear a message Of days as gold and blue!

When someone gives you flowers, He gives the rare delight Of trees where blithe winds whisper, And birds in joyous flight.

Even More Important

There are always dangerous men seeking alliances with any movement hoping to achieve their own questionable purposes under any guise, or any profession. A farmer never buys a pure bred animal without searching the pedigree, nor should he ally himself with any body of men without studying their past performance.

NEW INVENTION DOES AWAY WITH COOKING ODORS

Even fish and cauliflower bow down to Canpar Cookery Parchment

BETTER, CHEAPER AND EASIER COOKING

Delicious as cauliflower, cabbage and certain other vegetables are, they have caused a heavy pollution on people who fearlessly cooked them. Not to mention those who had to suffer the odor without enjoying the finished product. The same thing is equally true of fish.

Canpar Cookery Parchment, a very ingenious invention, does away with this annoyance entirely. While sealing in odors, it also retains flavor and food value. Cooking in Canpar actually parallels the famous French method of simmering and confining food and its flavor in the closed casserole.

You buy Canpar in a large envelope of handy-size sheets which may be rinsed out and used over and over again because they won't absorb odors. When boiling vegetables you simply wet the Canpar and make a bag similar to a pudding bag. If you steam them, you line the steamer with Canpar, arrange food and seasoning, and fold back corners of the Canpar to prevent steam from dripping back. You can actually cook three vegetables at once in the same saucepan, this way—save fuel—and the flavors will not intermingle.

Steamed, or boiled, fish comes out firm, solid and swimming in its own juice. No odors. No sticky steamer or saucepan to clean up afterwards.

Line your roasting pan with Canpar, then the fats and juices can't burn. Meat is more succulent and there is no scorching or scraping of the pan afterwards.

Many women use Canpar for a dish cloth. It is so easy and satisfactory, and doesn't spread lint.

You'll never be without Canpar once you start using it. It saves time and money. Make the most of the famous PARASANI Heavy Waxed Paper in the Green Box.

Most grocers, druggists and department stores sell Canpar, but if yours doesn't, just send the coupon and we'll give you a new and unique Canpar package containing one hundred recipes as a bonus for your trouble.

PUBLISHING A WEEKLY PAPER

Printing is the one art which sprang full born, and which has improved through the centuries, not in quality, but only in rapidity of production. This was a sidelight on the history of printing, as told to Rotarians by Charles Clark, last Thursday evening.

"Printing," remarked the speaker, is the inseparable companion of achievement. Remove printing from any business or the study of any profession, and how long could these function? It links up with every phase of modern business life, and is a most vital necessity."

It is through the medium of printing that the lore and knowledge of the centuries is carried down to enrich and widen professional wisdom. We would still be in the dark ages of advancement if the experience and discoveries of past generations were not immortalized between the covers of books. In modern business life, what chaos would reign if it were not for the abundant use of printing. Labels, statements, records, advertising matter, all are designed to simplify the multitudinous requirements of the modern business men. Few men make as full and time-saving use of this medium as they might. Few regard with sufficient attention the importance of quality in the art of printing.

The first book printed in Europe from movable type was the Vulgate Bible, printed in Strasburg in 1465 by a German named Gutenberg.

In much earlier ages, however, printing was used in the far East as communication between religious orders. It has been discovered that as early as 202 B.C., the Chinese were developing the art, seeking a suitable writing medium in bamboo, wood and silk reeds. In A.D., a Chinese official invented paper. The first paper was merely rag fibre, probably like blotting paper, but this yielded to subsequent improvements.

The ink used in the printing of the Vulgate Bible must have been of very high grade, as today it is black and perfect. It was made from soot and linseed, and the press work is as good as anything of the present day, although printed in a combination of wood and metal. This is a remarkable tribute to this first printing machine. The early masters of the trade still set us standards for quality and perfection of work.

Gutenberg's struggle to keep his invention a secret is a story in itself. His first printing was a copy of the Lord's prayer. He refused to divulge his secret and it was hinted that he was in league with the Evil One. Despite repeated moves, he printed the Bible under great difficulties. This great inventor lived and died in poverty. A Gutenberg Bible sold recently for $300,000, the highest price ever paid for a single book. There are now only 13 complete Gutenbergs, printed in 1465, left in the world.

Gutenberg, like many another inventor, had his patent rights taken from him. But the news of his work spread. France became interested. English printers developed the art, and in America the University Press was founded 19 years after the landing of the Pilgrim Fathers. In those days type was set by hand.

Modern printing has developed marvels of speed, with which everyone is familiar—the printed message of some famous statesman's speech, is being shouted by the newboys almost before the echo of the speaker's voice has died.

As the speaker's words come by telegraph, the compositor at the type-setting machine is setting it in type. It is then made into sheets, plates and taken to the pressroom. There a great machine furnishes paper, prints, folds it and in a jiffy has it ready for the newboys and trains to carry to other towns.

Advertising is as old as Adam, and yet it is only in the last 60 years that it has been realized to be the most powerful influence in directing public opinion. Recognizing this, the manufacturer, if he is to survive, brings the quality of his products before the public by means of the printed word. This advertising in its appeal, is also of benefit to the local dealer, and it is the wise local merchant, who links up with the progressive manufacturer. The natural, honest, forceful message of good goods, leaves an indelible impression on the mind of the mass of readers.

The newspaper, carrying into every household the current news of the day, is the handmaiden of the advertiser. In proportion as the paper contains interesting news, it is welcomed and read, and incidentally increases the scope of the advertiser's appeal. It is the mission of the small town weekly to chronicle the news, not only of the town, but also of all the surrounding district. It strives to knit together the town and adjacent communities for better understanding and for mutual strength.

THIS SHOWS HOW CAREFUL
WE EDITORS SHOULD BE

Charged with defamatory libel about T. B. Macaulay, president of the Sun Life Assurance Company, and found guilty, J. A. Hargall, editor of the Journal of Commerce, was sentenced to three months' imprisonment.

While this will be a warning to other editors, it is also hoped it will give the general public a better idea of how careful an editor must be about what he puts in print. There are those in every community who appear to think the local editor should use his columns to air their petty spites, grievances, and family or neighborhood quarrels. "Why don't you get after this one or that one, this organization or that organization?" we are sometimes asked. "Who or she should have done this," we are told. Fine. But if the average editor were to pay attention to and fall for that line of d-p-o, the government would have to build additional jails specially for editors. Those who expect that sort of thing from the editor are usually like the instigators of hunger marches, unemployment demonstrations, etc. They are hiding in the cellar when the trouble starts.—Reddick Review.

MAINTAINED BY ALBERTA

There are six provincial bird sanctuaries in Alberta with an area of 264 square miles. These sanctuaries are fully maintained by the province, having been taken over when Alberta acquired rights to its natural resources from the Federal government. In addition there are five small sanctuaries that are maintained by cities or private citizens. Alberta has 32 public shooting areas with a total area of 36,000 square miles.

Should developments at that parley make it necessary to postpone the date, the postponement will be made, but otherwise the government hopes to open the session on February 2.

Frank Celli, a well-known business man of Coleman, was carrying his rabbit's foot with him on a trip to spend Christmas with his son Floyd at their cherry orchard just east of town. He arrived here Friday, and early that evening was persuaded to buy a 25-cent ticket in a raffle the Legion sponsored to buy supplies for their Christmas hamper. The ticket was the lucky one in the draw, and Mr. Celli won a dressed hog weighing 130 pounds. The draw took place Friday evening and the Celli ticket was one of the last to be sold.—Creston Note.

CORRESPONDENCE

Blairmore, Alberta,
December 23, 1932.Mr. Samuel Rowe,
Blairmore, Alberta.

Sir—In your letter to Mr. Wootton, which appeared in the Blairmore Enterprise, you expressed a wish that the workers should make no use of what you said. I am one of those who did so, and therefore, although I realize that the object of your letter is a reply from Mr. Wootton, I wish to give my opinion in regard to this.

The key-note of your letter, Mr. Rowe, is desperation in capital letters. No doubt you thought that a reminder of the discrimination list in reference to Frank Leary and Ralph Wootton would plant the seed of discontent in our ranks. You have failed miserably.

We realize that someone must suffer in every clash between the working class and the capitalist parasites, but we are willing to make the sacrifice because every inch of ground gained strengthens the working class movement and brings us that much closer to the goal towards which we strive. Every army must have a leader. Our leaders are volunteers, and they take the same risks as those who follow them. You suggest that these comrades should have refused to work until the rest were taken on again. Surely a man of your age, who is a worker, must realize that strategy and politics must be played carefully in the class struggle. If these men refused the jobs, the bosses would have ample reason for refusing them work at any time. Also when they accept, the operators, like yourself, hope that it will cause discontent in the ranks. I have explained this in simple form, because your letter has caused me to wonder whether you are mentally responsible, and as a Britisher I shrink from taking an unfair advantage.

You say that you feel your characters are far more honorable than the accusers can ever be. What sort of honor is there in one who has betrayed his comrades, and sold himself as a willing slave to the sucker system. I once read a letter in the Blairmore Enterprise, written, I believe, by your wife. It was, if I remember correctly, brimming with British Patriotism. You know that Mr. Wootton was decorated "Over There" in the war. Would you call him dishonorable? We are all your accusers, and many of us are suffering as a result of the Great War. Even we children of disabled veterans are suffering indirectly. Your anti-working class organization, The Blairmore Miners' Association, is being used against us, the tool of the operators. It is surprising that one of your patriotic calibre would condescend to such an organization, siding a French company to show its appreciation of returned men by visiting distress upon them and their families.

Sincerely,
JULIA JOHNSON.

MONTREAL, Dec. 23.—All employees of the city of Montreal have been notified in a circular letter that "your engagement as a functionary of the City of Montreal will terminate on the 31st of the current month and that, counting from the 1st of January, 1933, you will be considered as being engaged from day to day." The letter was signed by the various department heads in the name of the executive council.

This notification, which technically discharges all employees at the end of the year, in fact gives the executive council power to take any measures considered necessary for civic economy.

An unbalanced budget and the determination to level expenditures to the diminished revenue is believed the cause of the circular letter. The budget comes before the city council for discussion today.

SEA DOGS' HOME.

MINE OF YARNES

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—A free and happy hunting ground for writers of sea stories, a spacious garden spot where some 6000 "sea dogs" have spent their last years, today observed the 101st anniversary of its cornerstone laying.

In 1831 they started building Snug Harbor. On the same date, three years later, the body of Captain Richard Randall, the founder, was moved from a New York grave and placed beneath a huge monument on this home he founded on Staten Island.

So August 21 is a very special day for the old "sea dogs" who have come there from all parts of the country. Next year they plan a big celebration. This year the occasion was marked by no special functions, but by many a yarn—and that's the principal product of Snug Harbor.

One of the prize stories is that of Captain Fred Southard, 75, from Richmond, Me., who was awakened from an afternoon siesta on the Pacific ocean during the World war by the German raider, Count von Luckner. Hastily transferred to the German ship, Southard left his teeth in a washbowl in his cabin, but Von Luckner graciously sent sailors back to rescue the teeth before blowing up Southard's ship, the Manila.

A prolific story teller and one captain who is held in a sort of awe at Snug Harbor is Thomas Watson Garlick, 71, of North Dartmouth, Mass., who commanded many of the best-known liners of both oceans. This is because Captain Garlick's forced age retirement came just in time to save him from commanding the Lusitania when she was sent to the bottom by a German torpedo.

More interesting perhaps than the tales of all the white-whiskered ship-masters and wood-niggered "John Silvers" there is the story of Snug Harbor itself and of how its holdings became valued at $30,000,000.

Alexander Hamilton is credited with drawing up the will of Captain Randall, who died in 1891, so that it has withstood sporadic attacks of self-styled Randall heirs since then.

Captain Randall left 20 acres of farm land in the heart of Manhattan, the income of which was to create and support the home for seamen over 60 years old or disabled after at least six years at sea. That land lies from Washington square to Astor place and between Sixth and Tenth avenues.

Its early income was about $4000 annually. In recent years its annual income exceeded $1,000,000. About $800,000 was spent on the home and the rest on real estate, as required by the will. The will also forbade other gifts being accepted by the home and set up a permanent board of trustees.

PAYING THE PIPER—AND HOW!

The last war cost the United States $51,000,000,000. As recently as 1883, $51,000,000,000 would have bought the whole United States, with everything and everything in it, lock, stock and barrel.

Today $51,000,000,000 would buy 16 states like Alabama, or three enormously rich Californias, with a couple of Colorado's thrown in for good measure. It would buy the entire state of New York—including the metropolis, wonder city of the world—and there still would be left over enough change to acquire four states like Maryland.

If you had started throwing away dollars the day Christ was born, and kept it up ever since at the rate of a dollar a minute without pausing either to eat or sleep, you would only now be starting on your second billion, with 95,000 more years to go.

At five per cent, $51,000,000,000

Opportunity Knocks In 1933.

Another year has gone, carrying with it into the limbo of the past an overall load of troubles, difficulties, losses and grief, but leaving behind a residue of problems to be carried into, and we trust to be to a very large extent, solved in the new year. We can well afford to bid a lasting good-bye to all the unpleasantness and worries of the old year, holding on only to those lessons which have come to us out of the experiences of the past.

Our faces are now set to the future; our thoughts and our planning should be of it and for it. A calendar for 1933 hangs on the wall before us as we write. Three hundred and sixty-five days! What are we going to make of them? What are we going to do with them?

Conditions, happenings, circumstances altogether beyond our power to control will, of course, affect the trend of world events and of our lives. These we must meet as they come. It has ever been so; it will continue to be true. In this age it is perhaps true to a greater extent than ever before, because man, through his own God-given genius has brought the whole world, and world influences, more closely into our individual lives. But, even so, the fact remains that, as individuals, we still remain the greatest factor in the making or marring of our lives. We will start the new year aright if we remember this great truth.

So, what are we going to do with and make of the year 1933? Are we entering it in a spirit of hopefulness and despite, seeing failure at the end? Or are we embracing it with gladness as presenting a new opportunity, a new hope, animated by a new confidence that substantial measure of success will reward our efforts in the direction of individual, national and world betterment?

Are we bowed down by a fatalistic idea that nothing could be worse than what is, and therefore recklessly prepared to go to any length in the adoption of anything advanced as a remedy no matter how desperate it may be? Or do we still retain confidence in ourselves, in our abilities and powers, to remedy the mistakes of the past, banish the evils, right the wrongs, and apply our individual intelligence and energies to the solution of the problems now confronting us?

In this new year it will not be so much existing institutions, political and economic, that will be on trial, as it will be ourselves, you and I as individuals, citizens of a great Dominion, of a greater Commonwealth of Nations, of a still greater world. These institutions have developed weaknesses—that is universally admitted—reforms are called for and must be effected. But these weaknesses can only be overcome, these reforms brought about, by us, first, as individuals, and secondly as individuals working co-operatively together.

The errors resulting in present difficulties are man-made errors; it is the human factor that has failed to function properly, rather than the systems and machines. And it is the human factor, that is you and I individually and collectively, who are living at fault. It is in ourselves, in our way and manner of thinking and living, in our ambitions, that weaknesses have developed; it is in ourselves that reform is most urgently needed. It is first foremost that the responsibility rests to us, as individuals, to reform ourselves, that they will work and not be thrown out of gear.

This thought brings us back to our original question: What are we going to do with the 365 new days now presented to us? Are we going to grasp them, bend them to our will, make every minute of every one of them work to our individual and mutual advantage? Or are we about to throw up our hands in despair, and say: "What's the use? Are we going to fight a gallant battle, or ignominiously surrender and admit defeat? Are we to deny our God-given intellects and powers, our dearly bought birthright of individual liberty and freedom, and be content to forego our responsibilities and become mere cogs in a machine?"

Rather, does not this new year beckon to us a reassertion of our individuality, to a new application of our powers to our own problems? As we look back for a moment over the past years, can we not discover that we enjoyed the greatest happiness, entertained a greater self-respect, yes, felt a greater satisfaction in life and reaped a richer reward therefrom, when we fought our own battles and relied upon our own efforts than in these later years when so many have depended upon others to help them rather than when an extra effort to help themselves? Did we not feel more like men when we shouldered our own burdens, and gave a lift to others more heavily burdened than ourselves, than we possibly can feel in giving up the fight, and shifting our burdens on to others, even though the "others" be the community and nation as a whole?

Canadians are a self-reliant people. They have fought a good fight during the past three years of depression. It has been a hard fight, a fight against heavy odds, and in many respects, against factors beyond our own control, and the battle is not yet ended. But it will end, and end in victory if we do not weaken. Factors undreamed of a few years ago are coming up as reinforcements because the depression has taught the world lessons it would never have learned in years of prosperity. These lessons are along constructive lines; not the destructive proposals which always are advanced when people are perplexed and in trouble. This new year can carry us far along the road to victory if we use it aright. And the right way to use it is to apply our individuality to the problems that lie at our hands, just as did the pioneers of old, and not give heed to the wailing Jeremiahs of despair.

Television Across the Sea

A successful television transmission from London to Copenhagen, Denmark, was made recently. The reception was on a screen, of about three by nine feet, in a Copenhagen theatre. The pictures and voices were picked up by the Vestfronten Wireless Station and transmitted by land lines to Copenhagen.

Imports of American raw cotton into China are expected to increase within the next year.

Nervous—Could Not Sleep Tired Out All The Time

Mrs. George Scribner, Naisiagwanak, N.B., writes:—"I was so very nervous I could not sleep at night, and felt tired out all the time."

A neighbor told me about Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and as she was taking them at the time she gave me some to try. I found they were doing me so much good I procured two boxes and they proved of wonderful help to me."

Investigate Cosmic Rays

Prof. Piccard Plans Balloon Ascent in Hudson Bay Area. Plans for balloon ascensions in Belgium next summer and in northern Canada in 1934 have been announced by Prof. Auguste Piccard, who has made the farthest trip from the earth on record.

It was not certain whether he himself would participate in the flights. Prof. Piccard plans to sail in the near future for Canada where he will study possibilities of an ascension in the vicinity of the north magnetic pole on Boothia peninsula in the Canadian Arctic.

A new ascension, Prof. Piccard said, was necessary to clear up the question of whether cosmic rays originate from stars or galactic nuclei.

If the former be true, he said, the secondary "soft" rays deviated by the earth's magnetic field ought to best be detected at high altitudes near the magnetic pole in the Hudson Bay region.

He said that the power of the cosmic rays was such that, payable to their striking the atmosphere, a drop of water under their influence would be liable to yield sufficient electricity to provide New York with several hours of light.

Works On a System

French Statesman Always Organizes Time To The Minute

M. Herriot, who is much in the public eye just now, was recently described by the News of the World as easily the most picturesque figure in French politics today. Short and stout, with a white complexion and heavy, dark eyebrows, he is as active as a schoolboy, and has a schoolboy's high spirits. He is also one of the very few French statesmen who are devoted to pipe-smoking. He was the son of a widowed mother in poor circumstances, and by dint of study he became a professor of history and literature at one of the universities. He is still a prodigious reader, and has written many books on politics, music, and literature. When asked how he has managed to indulge his literary leanings in addition to fulfilling his heavy administrative duties—he has been Mayor of Lyons for 25 years—he says, "It is just system." He organizes his time to the minute. It was his "excellent work" at Lyons that secured him his present appointment as Director of Revitalizing during the war—and since then he has never been far from the centre of French politics.

Cannot Be Duplicated

Valuable Mah Jong Set Belonged To Chinese Governor

Efrem Zimbalist, violinist, has returned to New York from the Orient with what he believes is the most superb mah jong set in existence. This object and many more are in the recent acquisitions sections of the museum in the Zimbalist residence. The mah jong set belonged to the Governor of Shantung and the money with which the violinist bought it helped to pay for the Governor's funeral. It was sold because the money was needed for the elegant funeral necessary for such a dignitary. Every piece in the set is of an extremely beautiful type of agate. In each piece the proper figures are carved and the indentations are in the wood with precious stones. The color scheme is dazzling. The violinist understands that his mah jong set is perhaps 300 years old and that it cannot be duplicated today.

Patronize New Highway

Thousands Of Cars From West Travel To Kenora, Ont.

The opening of the inter-provincial highway between Ontario and Manitoba, brought a tremendous volume of new tourist business to Kenora, the official count showing that from June 1 to October 31, fifteen thousand and eight hundred and ten cars came from the west, and from November 1 to 20, when traffic then tapered off, the number was increased by six hundred and twenty-four, making a grand total of twenty thousand four hundred and thirty-four, approximately fifty-seven thousand five hundred and nineteen tourists.

Really Quite Simple

The splitting of the atom is quite simple when explained by Lord Rutherford. The passage of the invisible neutron into the nucleus of the atom, said he, is like an invisible man passing through Piccadilly Circus; his path can be traced only by the people he has pushed aside.

If Premier J. E. Brownlee of Alberta is appointed a member of the Canadian Tariff Commission, it is reported that Robert Gardiner, M.P. (above), Progressive Leader in the House of Commons, will retire to accept the Premiership of the Western Province.

Now Comes "Electric Dollar"

Scientists Have Idea To Do Away With Depressions

A new kind of money, the "electric dollar," with its value based on electrical energy instead of gold, was proposed as one way to do away with depressions, before the American Association for the Advancement of Science, meeting in New York.

It would be issued in the form of currency, like the paper money now in use, and would end depressions because it would always purchase approximately the same amount of goods, said Dr. John Pease Norton, economist.

The "electric dollar" would be valued in terms of kilowatt hours, the unit by which electricity is measured, and which Dr. Norton said are the same in quality and quantity everywhere in the United States.

Gold currency would continue to exist and would fluctuate in value with reference to the electric dollar, just as foreign currency now fluctuates with reference to United States gold currency.

Boom To Bicycle Business

British Manufacturers Find Demand Is Steadily Increasing

British manufacturers of bicycles and tricycles report a boom in their business comparable to that in the wheel-mad '90s. One manufacturer says that fifteen months ago he and others in that industry were faced with ruin. Of a sudden the cycle boom appeared and within three months they were employing 30 per cent more wheelmakers than at any other period during the last twenty-five years.

Bicycle riders in England are considered something of a nuisance on the road, as motorists find it difficult to dodge them. The same condition was in existence in England up to last year, but there has been a steady falling off in the use of automobiles due to the high British taxes on all vehicles. So now the wheelmen are coming back in great numbers.

Salvaging Dutch Lifer

Believe Gold In Vessel Torpedoed In North Sea

Next among the sunken ships, to be explored for its treasure, is the Dutch liner "Tubantia," which was torpedoed in the North Sea in 1917. There has been considerable mystery regarding the cargo which this vessel was carrying when she went to the bottom, but it is believed she had a large sum of gold which was being sent from Germany to the United States for financing war propaganda. The gold, it was stated, amounted to nearly $5,000,000 and was supposed to be in Dutch cheese. Salvage efforts in 1925 had to be abandoned, but the success of the "Artiglio" in recovering the gold of the "Egypt" suggests that a second attempt to get at the "Tubantia's" treasure may be fruitful.

London historians have found that the city's first library was housed in a Croydon monastery, which was burned down nearly 1,000 years ago.

Java's New Currency

Merchants Accept Cigarette Coupons In Payment For Anything

They're using cigarette coupons for money in Java. A fat roll of these "greenbacks" and "yellowbacks" will buy anything from soap to nuts and you have Carl H. Boehringer's word for it. Coupons are being used as tender to buy meals, clothing, phonograph records and even motor cars.

Boehringer, who is Assistant Trade Commissioner at Batavia, in cabling the Department of Commerce at Washington about Java's financial problems didn't say how many coupons will produce a bill of sale for an automobile, but hinted that business in this "paper" is so active that various enterprising individuals are now carrying on a brokerage business in them.

Pity the poor Javanese—their lives are getting fewer and fewer. For some time past, said Boehringer, actual money among the natives has become increasingly scarce and during the recent rice harvest laborers were paid not in money but in kind.

Cigarette coupons came into the monetary picture when various domestic producers began active competition and each issued coupons redeemable for various articles. With money almost impossible to get the natives, through necessity, embarked on a new currency programme, swapping, buying and selling, and gambling for this new "money."

Need for real money has not diminished despite the fact that the situation is aggravated by the fact that the opportunity for work on the large estates is being reduced while wages are being consistently scaled downward. Natives, although receiving less money, found no diminution in the need for it, as they had no bank deposits and purchase of fertilizer had to be maintained.

On Wheat Committee

Prof. Allen Of Saskatchewan University Asked To Assist With Problems

Professor Allen, of the University of Saskatchewan, has been asked by Premier J. C. Anderson to accept a place on the wheat problems committee, a body set up at the recent inter-provincial conference in Winnipeg.

Premiers of the prairie provinces are members of the committee, and so is Professor H. C. Grant, of the University of Manitoba. The latter will attend the Cincinnati conference, at which the plan fostered by the United States to limit production will be discussed.

EGGS GAVE HER INDIGESTION

"When this woman of 72 years found a remedy for her indigestion, it proved to be one her 70-year-old brother was already using to keep him 'a perfect picture of health.'"

"For years I had suffered with indigestion, and simply could not eat an egg or a potato. I took an aperient regularly, but still I suffered. I began this year taking a small dose of Kruschen Salts. Now I can eat eggs and potatoes and enjoy them—without any after-trouble."

"My brother is a perfect picture of health, and a splendid advertisement for Kruschen Salts. He is always bright and happy. He never forgets his morning dose—neither do I, now that I know the value of it. My brother is 70 years of age, and I am 72 years. We have reason to bless these valuable salts. I recommend them to all my friends."—(Mrs.) M.E.M.

The six salts in Kruschen stimulate and tune up the bodily functions from a number of different angles. Your stomach, liver and kidneys all feel the immediate benefit. You forget indigestion, headaches and depression and get the best of physical and mental exhilaration.

Soviet State Farms Not Delivering Grain

Have Fallen Down Badly In Deliveries To State

The state farms to which Soviet government looks not only to furnish approximately one-seventh of its grain resources but also to set an example for collective and individual peasants, were pictured as having fallen down badly in their deliveries of grain to the state.

Acknowledging that this branch of agriculture had fulfilled only 77.8 per cent of the collections assessed against it and supposed to be completed December 15, the newly-created commissariat for grain and cattle threatened them with arrest and trial unless effective measures are taken in the situation, which it described as "shameful."

It condemned those farms in Siberia, Eastern Siberia, Western Siberia and the Urals as most backward, directed attention to the fact that the East Siberian trust had the worst showing, with only 56 per cent of the collections completed.

Placing responsibility directly on the shoulders of the individual directors of the state farms, the orders threatened them with arrest and trial unless effective measures are taken to complete collections forthwith.

American Farmers in Bad Way

About Forty Per Cent Of Farm Lands Under Mortgage

Approximately 40 per cent of the farm lands in the United States are under mortgage.

This was the estimate of Eric Englund, assistant chief of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, to the House appropriations subcommittee at hearings on the annual agricultural department supply bill.

About five per cent of these farms, Englund said, have mortgage debt in excess of their value; about 10 per cent, debts from 75 to 100 per cent of their value and 21 per cent debts from 50 to 75 per cent.

Much of this indebtedness is being wiped out through the drastic foreclosure method, he said.

Manitoba Gold Area

American Mining Engineer Impressed With Results of God's Lake

Gold Country

God's Lake gold country is bigger than anything in the United States. This is the statement of W. K. Harding, mining engineer of Minneapolis, who has spent more than a month in locating properties 300 air miles northeast of The Pas.

"I have spent 20 years going over gold properties in the west and east, but I never saw anything as big as this district. The size and extent of the formation, plus the high gold values in what is apparently uninteresting stuff, offers great possibilities," said Mr. Harding.

U. S. STUDIES NEW METHODS OF TAXATION

Washington.—A new search for additional sources of revenue to balance the United States budget was initiated by Democratic leaders of the United States House of Representatives, although the possibility of enacting a general tax bill at this season sharply diminished.

Reports from Albany, N.Y., that President-Elect Franklin D. Roosevelt disapproved of the suggested manufacturers' sales tax led both Speaker John C. Garner and Chairman James C. Kolmer, of the House Ways and Means Committee, to say that "developments in the last 24 hours" practically ended all prospects of that sort of levy for the present.

Collier said the McKewen plan to levy a privilege or license tax of one per cent. on chain stores and other interstate businesses, estimated to return $600,000,000 annually, would be submitted to his committee.

Albany, New York.—President-Elect Franklin Roosevelt will seek first-hand information on the financial situation of the United States, it became known before committing himself to any tax policy in connection with the problem of balancing the federal budget.

The gathering of this information will be one of the first tasks to which Mr. Roosevelt will set himself after his term as governor of New York ends.

Had Rough Voyage

Liner "Majestic" Is Hit By Heavy Seas

New York.—The "Majestic," one of the largest liners afloat, arrived in port with the forward section of her forecastle battered in, and most of the passengers discussing a freak wave which caused the death of a sailor and shook the ship with terrifying force.

Premier R. G. Bennett was a passenger aboard the liner, returning to Canada from a short visit to London. The story those aboard told was this:

As the liner was moving slowly toward the United States with her speed reduced to "knots," the "Majestic," technically known as an "accumulator," smashed over the prow, struck the forecastle head-on, tore open a bulkhead, flooded the crew's galley, swept everything ahead and caused the entire ship to shake under the impact.

J. N. Johnston, an able seaman, was in deckhouse "B" and was thrown so violently against a metal wall that he later died of injuries. He was buried at sea and the passengers raised a $250 purse for his widow and two children.

Strike Favored By Farmers

Principle Endorsed By Hundreds In Meeting At Leduc

Leduc, Alberta.—The principle of the proposed strike of prairie farmers beginning in the spring of 1933 was endorsed at a meeting of several hundred farmers here. The meeting prepared resolutions which will be sent to the federal and Alberta governments urging a bonus on the 1932 wheat crop, depreciation of the Canadian dollar to the level of the British pound sterling, adjustment of debts on farm lands and a debt moratorium.

In Writing History

Toronto, Ont.—One of the most unique pieces of historical research ever attempted in North America is nearing completion in the basement of a Toronto home. W. Perkins Bull, K.C., is writing a history of Peel, his native county, and is making it so comprehensive it will be a micro-scope study of the development of civilization on this continent.

In Justice Of The Peace

Winnipeg, Man.—The blind goddess with the scales and sword has now sprouted a pair of wings in Manitoba. An order-in-council passed by the Manitoba Government makes Roy Brown, an aviator of the provincial forestry patrol at Lac du Bonnet, a flying justice of the peace having jurisdiction under the Small Debts Recovery Act.

For Coalition

Roose Has Plans For New Government For South Africa

Johannesburg, South Africa.—Tielman Roose, former member of the Nationalist Government, indicated that he intended to take the premiership of South Africa himself if his plan for a coalition government succeeds.

The former judge, who resigned last week from the appellate division of the supreme court, told interviewers he will declare openly for a coalition government.

"We must destroy any remnants of racialism and the two sections must join to pull the country out of the muck," he said.

"I shall say further," he added, "that neither General Smuts nor Prime Minister Hertzog can arrange for a coalition. If they could I should not be in the arena."

Mr. Roose's pronouncement created a deep impression. While he had returned to politics for the expressed purpose of attacking the government in which he once served as minister of justice, it was not thought he had any designs on the premiership himself.

His attack, which admittedly weakened the position of the government in the House of Representatives where its majority had already shrunk to a very small proportion of the membership, was based largely on his opposition to retaining the gold standard.

Railway Men Retire

Ninety-Two Officers and Employees To Go On Pension List

Montreal, Quebec.—Ninety-two officers and employees of the Canadian Pacific Railway were retired on pension on January 1, according to an announcement recently.

The retirements occur in practically every branch of the company's activities, affecting offices in Great Britain, Canada, United States and the Orient.

Among the more prominent names are J. L. Doupe, chief surveyor, Winnipeg; J. S. Carter, district passenger agent, Nelson, B.C.; M. E. Thornton, district superintendent of colonization, Portland, Ore.; J. A. MacGregor, superintendent, Moose Jaw division, and W. Kirby, master in British Columbia lake and river service.

Treaty With Germany

Three Months' Trade Arrangement Goes Into Effect

Ottawa, Ont.—Canada and Germany have made a three months' temporary trade arrangement from January 1. For the first time in 35 years, Canadian goods, under the agreement, will be accorded most-favored-nation treatment by Germany.

The Dominion will receive the conventional tariff of Germany and the general tariff where no conventional rates exist. Canada grants the intermediate tariff on German goods. A definite treaty is expected to be terminated between the two countries before March 31.

Must Understand French

Working Knowledge Of Language Essential For Radio Secretary

Ottawa, Ont.—Organization of the new Canadian Radio Broadcasting Commission, under Hector Carlessworth, chief commissioner, is under way. The civil service commission is now receiving applications for the post of secretary of the commission which carries an annual salary of $3,720 per year less a 10 per cent. deduction. Ability to speak and write both the English and French languages is one of the qualifications required.

Emerge From Depression

University Professor Says Recovery Will Come In Due Time

Cincinnati.—Expressing belief "the country will, in due time, climb out of this depression just as it has recovered from every previous depression," Frederick S. Diebler, economics professor of Northwestern University, warned today "we must not take too seriously the pessimistic and injurious predictions of some of the members of the technocracy group of engineers."

Glasgow, Scotland.—Nearly one-half the 800 passengers aboard the steamship "Cameroon," York, have suffered from a mild type of influenza. Their discomfort was increased by rough weather.

Crops In Argentina Destroyed By Locusts

Insects Completely Cleaning Up Cotton, Maize, and Tobacco

Chicago.—The Chicago Tribune publishes the following cable from Formosa, Argentina: "The advance of a dense swarm of locusts, estimated to be 350 miles long and five miles wide, down the banks of the Barne River, has caused a panic of desperation among the farmers. The insects are completely cleaning up the cotton, maize and tobacco crops, despite frantic efforts to stem the living avalanche of destruction."

"Available supplies of arsenic dust and other locust-killing products are exhausted, and the farmers have directed a desperate appeal to authorities for assistance."

"Juan Spomer, a farmer, and his wife, of San Salvador, in Entre Rios province, committed suicide by hanging when they found their fruit orchard and limped crop had fallen prey to a swarm of locusts."

"They left a letter saying that 'All our capital is gone and three years' labor lost. Therefore we prefer to die rather than begin the struggle again.'"

Liquor Sales Falling Off

Figures Show Profits For B.C. Are Greatly Decreased

Victoria, B.C.—Total profits for the British Columbia government from liquor sales and pari-mutual taxes amounted to $1,060,000, for the six months period ending September 30 last, compared with $1,637,783 for the previous six months.

Total amount of liquor sales for the last half-yearly period were not revealed but is understood to be in the neighborhood of $4,000,000 as against $6,500,000 for the preceding six months period.

BARTER PLAN WITH RUSSIA TO BE CONSIDERED

Ottawa, Ont.—Plans to supply Russian farms with Canadian dairy cattle are well under way, according to information available here. The Soviet could take 100,000 head and pay them with fur. The proposal will probably be finally decided upon within the next few days.

In the meantime, although official confirmation of the progress already made is being withheld, Hon. Robert Weir, minister of Agriculture, admitted that he had been working for several weeks on the project and had hopes it would be of benefit to the farmers of Canada.

While the minister of agriculture has been behind the move, the actual negotiations, it is understood, from other sources, are being conducted between a company which is in course of organization in Winnipeg and the Soviet authorities. Much of the negotiations have been conducted in New York but a representative of the company visited Russia to get first-hand information as to the situation there.

BRITAIN READY TO SEEK NEW DEAL ON DEBTS

The Mother Country has chosen the three delegates to go to Washington to negotiate a new settlement on the debts just as soon as our neighbors to the South can make up their minds as to when and what agency this British mission may negotiate. Largest Vote Ever Polled

Last U.S. Presidential Election Set New High Record

Washington.—The largest vote in the history of the United States was cast in the November presidential election—39,734,861.

With this record were established three others, Franklin D. Roosevelt received the highest popular and electoral votes ever given a winning candidate, and President Hoover polled the largest popular vote ever cast for a loser.

The 77,528 vote polled by William D. Upham as the prohibition party candidate, was the largest given this ticket since the first election after national prohibition was adopted. It was nearly four times the 1928 vote.

Returned Lost Purse

Unemployed Man In Windsor Recovered For His Honesty

Windsor, Ont.—'Twas the night before Christmas at Julius' house. There was nothing to eat for even a mouse.

That did not keep Julius Sondvik, unemployed and on relief, from hurrying to the police station with a purse and $37 he found on the street. The owner, Mrs. John Orave, was so pleased to regain valuable papers which the purse contained that she gave Julius $15 reward.

Japanese At Singapore

Ottawa, Ont.—Possibility of Japanese interest in establishing manufacturing industries in Singapore in order to take advantage of the preferential tariffs accorded empire-made goods by Canada, is being investigated by the Canadian government. So far no such plants have been established but rumors they were contemplated have come to the attention of the department of trade and commerce.

U.S. Would Collect

Insists That France Meets Payment Before Further Negotiations

Washington.—The United States government plans to insist that France meet the December 15 debt installment before there are any new negotiations with that country.

Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson made this clear in an assertion to newspapermen with regard to the conversations between Premier Paul-Boncour and Ambassador Edge.

The secretary said the report of Ambassador Edge did not require a formal answer but that it doubtless would be acknowledged and a re-statement would be made of the position of this government that the December 15 payment should precede new negotiations.

Mr. Stimson said he expected to talk again with Norman H. Davis about economic affairs before the experts meet at Geneva to arrange the agenda for the world economic conference.

The administration has taken the attitude that economic matters, disarmament and the war debt problems are inter-related.

Radio Hook-Up

Best Trans-Atlantic Broadcast Ever Carried

Ottawa, Ont.—The British Empire radio hook-up on Christmas morning was the most successful trans-Atlantic broadcast ever carried out as far as reception and coverage in Canada was concerned. This was the conclusion of Hector Charlesworth, chairman of the Canadian radio commission, today after he had read hundreds of congratulatory communications from all parts of Canada.

The commission had, as its share in the empire effort, the co-ordination of radio station and land wires in Canada to assure speedy and punctual progress of the globe-encircling programme. "We had the most superb co-operation from all line companies and stations," Mr. Charlesworth said.

Use Braille System

New Method Now Arrived At Canadian Institute For The Blind

Toronto, Ont.—Culmination of years of negotiation and largely brought about by Canadian representatives, the new universal Braille system has arrived at the Canadian National Institute for the Blind and will be forwarded within the next few days to every school for the blind in Canada.

Representatives of Canada, at a series of conferences, brought conflicting British and United States views together with the result that more than 150,000 blind people of British Empire countries and the United States will now be able to enjoy an increased number of volumes in the Braille system of embossed print at a saving of thousands of dollars.

INSULL IS FREED AT SITTING OF GREEK COURT

Athens, Greece.—Samuel Insull ate dinner with friends tonight, a free man after a Greek court had refused to sanction his extradition to the United States to answer Cook County, Ill., charges of mis-management of the funds of his utilities companies.

The court, after having peremptorily cut short the presentation of the defence case, found that depositions brought to Athens from Chicago did not support the charges against the former utilities operator, and let him go free.

Martin J. Insull, brother of Samuel, is in Canada at present awaiting hearing on extradition proceedings, also instituted by the authorities of Cook County. The case of Martin comes up this month at Barrie, Ont. There were extraordinary scenes among the large crowd which had gathered at Athens for the verdict, and shouts of "long live Greek justice" echoed through the building from which Insull emerged something of a hero.

"I owe thanks to Greek justice for the sympathy expressed," the Chicagoan said.

The charges against Mr. Insull in Chicago are grand larceny and embezzlement. They involve payments of $66,000 and $104,000 which, according to a deposition made by Oliver McCormick, treasurer of the utilities companies, were made to brokers for Martin Insull.

RIGID IMPORT QUOTA SYSTEM FOR FRANCE

Paris, France.—The most rigid import quota system in French history will be established at the beginning of 1933, placing further restrictions on imports, it was learned here. Ministry of Commerce experts are working through the holiday to enable publication of the new quotas before January 5.

It is understood none of the new quotas will exceed those now in existence, and that in many cases they will be considerably smaller. Moreover, the United Press was told, the Ministry of Commerce will refuse to grant exceptions as it has done in the past as a favor to certain nations.

Minister of Commerce Durand believes that more strict quotas will place France in an excellent bargaining position at the forthcoming world economic conference, but that meanwhile the French will be willing to relax restrictions in favor of those nations which grant concrete concessions to French trade.

Canada's New Trade Treaties

Three Months Temporary Arrangement Made With Germany

Ottawa, Ont.—Canada and Germany have made a three months' temporary trade arrangement from January 1. For the first time in 35 years, Canadian goods, under the agreement will be accorded most-favored-nation treatment by Germany.

Hon. C. H. Cahan, secretary of state, has been in Paris for some weeks negotiating a trade treaty with that country, to replace the one revoked several months ago. Canada and Germany entered a temporary trading agreement at the first of the year, to be replaced later by a permanent treaty. Negotiations were carried on some time ago with Argentina, but no basis for a treaty was reached. Agreements with other South American countries are contemplated.

In an indirect way Ottawa is interested in proposals to establish a barter system between Canada and Soviet Russia. Unofficial negotiations have been conducted to exchange Canadian cattle for Russian oil.
